Message from the IVETA President

Carmel Thompson, 2015-2016 President

There is so much chaos and political uncertainty today in all corners of the world but I firmly believe that we will get through it and build a better universe if we work together and remember we are a community with common needs and goals.

I am fortunate that in my position as President of IVETA I am invited to be a guest speaker/presenter at numerous conferences, workshops and forums all over the world. A few weeks ago I attended the International Forum on Innovation and Entrepreneurship Education in Shenzhen, China. My topic was Concept Change and Quality Improvement. This is something on everyone's mind as TVET providers grapple with the issue of encouraging innovation and flexibility but also maintaining quality. It is not too difficult to create rules, regulations and conduct audits of evidence in assessing competency, but does this actually stifle innovation which is what our graduates need to possess to succeed in today's world of work. There were many interesting discussions and I learnt many things from the other presenters and delegates.

Whilst in Shenzhen I also visited the Arts Faculty of Shenzhen Polytechnic which has 1,400 students. I saw best practice examples of what this city is doing in training young professionals to take up careers in 3D printing, news broadcasting for national TV, ceramics, 3D film making, silk painting, ceramics and art. They have a section of business offices and showrooms where graduates can use the premises for up to 12 months after graduation to get themselves established into their own small business. They are thinking outside the box to support their graduates and give them mentoring and business support. So they are providing their graduates with real world training that makes them readily employable with a strong emphasis on encouraging networking with key industry stakeholders. China is recognising the importance of TVET in developing the skills of their nation.

Applications for the position of President Elect and Vice President for all regions have been processed and within the next few weeks you will receive ballot papers. There are only two positions that will require you to vote where we have more than one person standing for the position but for members in that region I would ask you to please participate. Your vote is important.

This quarter we have several new articles on TVET under the "Regions" Heading on our website. They are: "An article on Perpetual Beta: A Challenge for VET" and also a report on the VET Assessment Practices Summit held on 28 and 29 April in Sydney, Australia from Jarvier Amaro, Insources Education. Both worth reading! Click here to read the articles.
